Dear Timpview Families,

I am very pleased to announce that seven of our seniors have been selected as National Merit Scholarship Finalists. These students are among the top one percent of seniors from across the country as determined by the PSAT exam. They are now eligible to be selected for one of 8,300 National Merit Scholarships. Congratulations to these students: Megan Asplund, Gabriel Bradford, Emma Chapman, Ben James, Chris Oh, Christian Sorensen, and Taylor Sorenson.

In addition, several of our Sterling Scholar candidates have recently moved forward in the state competition. Taylor Sorenson in Science, Steven Perry in Business, Marin Reeve in Foreign Language, Elizabeth Barton in English, Cariel Smith in Social Science, and Mackenzie Nelson in Drama have been selected to represent Timpview in the final stage of the state competition.

This past week I had the opportunity to cheer for our ladies’ basketball team as they made a run in the state tournament, culminating in a heartbreaking loss in the championship game. We can all be very proud of these young ladies as they showed a lot of grit, determination, and teamwork during this remarkable run. While this season did not end in

As the blue ribbons around our school and neighborhoods reminded us this past month, we lost one of our Timpview students, sophomore Parker McKay Allred, on Saturday, 2 February. Parker died due to complications from an unrelenting staph infection and the flu. He was an outstanding young man in so many ways. Bright, energetic, and hard-working, Parker was a good student, Eagle Scout, and member of the football and local water polo teams.

The Timpview community rallied around Parker and his family, offering love and support. Fellow students prayed for him, and some visited him during his stay at Primary Children’s Hospital. On the day of his passing, students decorated the school with posters honoring Parker and placed blue ribbons around the school and neighborhood. (Parker’s sister Madison had created the blog sweetblueeyedboy.blogspot.com to document Parker’s illness and pay tribute to his life.)

The school collected cards, the PTA made a scrapbook for students and teachers to share their thoughts, and friends compiled internet messages for Parker. At Parker’s funeral, a choir comprised of neighbors, football teammates in their jerseys, water polo teammates, and friends sang a beautiful song. The Allred family has been touched and comforted by the support and love of the Timpview community. A memorial fund is set up for Parker Allred at Key Bank to help pay for medical expenses.

the way our ladies had hoped, I am very optimistic about their future.

The end of the tournament left me with a strong positive impression of our student body. We have been working diligently with our students on displaying good sportsmanship regardless of winning or losing. Sportsmanship reflects character, and we want our students to always be humble in victory and gracious in defeat. To this end, students are asked to focus all of their cheers on our team and refrain from any cheers that are directed at the opposing team or officials.

I ask for all parents to help us by being good role models for our students. While it is easy for any of us to get caught up in the heat of the moment, derogatory comments toward the opposition or the officials reflect poorly on all of us and never help our team in the end. In the end, character matters, and sportsmanship reflects character.

As we begin this spring to prepare for next year, I encourage every parent to take a moment to discuss next year’s course selections with their student to ensure students are requesting the courses they need or want most. Our counselors are currently meeting with each student to determine their courses for next year. This information is important to the school, as we will use it to develop a master class schedule and make teaching assignments. Frequent changes throughout the spring and summer to students’ requests make it more challenging for us to balance teaching assignments and class sizes for next year. I appreciate your assistance to ensure we are meeting every student’s needs.

Happy Spring, and Go T-Birds!

–Todd

Computer Science

The Verizon App Challenge, a nationwide contest, awarded Timpview’s Advanced Computer Science team The Best in State App Design award. The team created an app called “Streamline Education,” which compiles classroom and school information and serves as an information clearinghouse for students, parents, and teachers.

The team’s design will be judged against other state winners. If it places in the top five nationally, team members will receive a Samsung Tablet, the school will receive a $10,000 grant, and team members will travel to MIT to develop their design into an actual Verizon app.

Is your student currently encountering attendance and/or academic concerns at school? To help students set positive academic goals and empower parents to help their teens, we invite parents and students to our Parent/Teen Mediation Program. This program has been an effective tool in helping students progress in their academic careers and practice positive behavior habits at home and school.

The four-week session has been held Thursday evenings 5:45–7:30 P.M. in the Timpview media center (library). Remaining dates are:

- Thursday, 21 March
- Thursday, 28 March

Previous classes were held 28 February and 7 March.

Benefits from attending Mediation are:
- UVU students trained in the mediation field lead parent-teen mediation.
- Students and parents learn to more effectively communicate at home.
- Students set behavior goals for academic success.
- THS school support team monitors and tracks students’ progress.
- Parents learn to access PowerSchool information.
- Additional THS support programs are presented and discussed.

We believe this program can help students find further success at Timpview. We invite you to attend. If you are interested, please contact Rene Cunningham: 801-221-9720.
Alan Allred Named Outstanding Music Educator

Alan Allred was named Outstanding Music Educator by the Utah Music Educators Association (UMEA) at its 41st annual awards ceremony in February. Mr. Allred came to Provo School district in 1994, where he inherited Timpview’s string program from Terry Hill and began supervision of the district’s elementary string program.

Under his direction, the orchestra program at Timpview has continued to grow, and over the last three years he has also taken under his wing the Provo High orchestra program. This is in addition to his full-time assignment with the Timpview and elementary programs. For a change of pace, he teaches and supervises the technical theater students at Timpview.

In the UMEA awards program, Mr. Allred was quoted as saying, “As a music educator I have always tried to provide the music-making experience to any who desired to learn. Aptitude is not a determining factor in allowing students into my orchestras. Helping each student have a musical experience is at the core of my values as a teacher. I try to exemplify the adage of high expectations and high care. I am so grateful to have been blessed to work at something that I love and to have wonderful students to create music with.”
